Legacy of Survival: Strength Forged by Water

Arfleifð lifunar: Styrkur mótaður af vatni

生存的遗产：水所锻铸之力

The name "Hotel Vos" is inspired by the history of Þykkvabær, where "vos" refers to wetness and the hardships caused by frequent flooding. Founded in 1220, the village struggled with floods until 1923, when a dam was built to alleviate the water issues. Today, Þykkvabær is known for its thriving potato farming. The name honors the resilience and transformation of the village.

"The Þykkvabær Potato Legacy"

A photograph showing a person's hands holding a wooden tray overflowing with fresh, round potatoes. The tray is positioned in front of a lush green potato field under a warm, golden sunset sky. The lighting creates a soft glow and highlights the texture of the potatoes.

Our menu features dishes inspired by these historical potatoes, offering a taste of Þykkvabær's legacy. Each potato is carefully selected to bring the true flavor of the village to your plate. Whether roasted to perfection, blended into a creamy soup, or presented in our signature potato salad, these potatoes carry the essence of Þykkvabær's rich earth and robust spirit.

Nestled in the heart of Iceland, Þykkvabær is not only the oldest rural village but also a place rich with culinary traditions, particularly its famed potatoes. As far back as anyone can remember, the fertile soils of Þykkvabær, enriched by the Rangá river, have produced potatoes of exceptional quality. These are not just any potatoes; they are a cornerstone of Þykkvabær's food heritage, cultivated with generations of knowledge and a deep connection to the land.

Join us in celebrating a culinary heritage that is as enduring as the village itself.
